This is a PDF file of an unedited manuscript that has been accepted for publication. As a service to our customers we are providing this early version of the manuscript. The manuscript will undergo copyediting, typesetting, and review of the resulting proof before it is published in its final form. Please note that during the production process errors may be discovered which could affect the content, and all legal disclaimers that apply to the journal pertain.

Highlights

- We provide a direct investigation of investor trading behavior driving the Monday effect, using complete daily trading data with investor type identification
- In sharp contrast to the established view, Monday effect is associated with institutional investors. Individuals rather counter it.
- Institutions' refraining from trading, particularly from buying, on Mondays emerges as a new partial explanation of the Monday effect
