This is a PDF file of an unedited manuscript that has been accepted for publication. As a service to our customers we are providing this early version of the manuscript. The manuscript will undergo copyediting, typesetting, and review of the resulting proof before it is published in its final form. Please note that during the production process errors may be discovered which could affect the content, and all legal disclaimers that apply to the journal pertain.

Highlights:

- Anti-bullying laws lead to decreases in-school bullying victimization (8.4%).
- Provisions with specific definition of the term bullying are even more effective.
- Potential delayed effect of the laws on bullying victimization.
- Stronger effects of laws on bullying for earlier grades.
- Smaller schools benefit much more from implementation of the legislation.
