This is a PDF file of an unedited manuscript that has been accepted for publication. As a service to our customers we are providing this early version of the manuscript. The manuscript will undergo copyediting, typesetting, and review of the resulting proof before it is published in its final form. Please note that during the production process errors may be discovered which could affect the content, and all legal disclaimers that apply to the journal pertain.

Highlights

- A hybrid genetic algorithm is proposed for the open capacitated arc routing problem.
- Solutions are encoded as permutations of required arcs, ignoring vehicle capacity.
- Chromosomes are decoded into viable solutions by an optimal feasibility method.
- The genetic algorithm outperforms state-of-the-art methods w.r.t. optimality gaps.
- Experiments show the feasibility method had a substantial role on performance.
